1900 Federal Census
T623, Roll 142, pages 226A-286B

The 1900 federal census includes members of every household, relationships, and birthplaces of the parents of each person. Also included is age, occupation, color, and state or country of birth. There was a great influx of European to Branford in 1900 to work at the Malleable Iron Fittings Company, Stony Creek quarry, railroad, and highways. Many of these families did not stay long and moved to other areas to find work. There was also an exodus of Branford men to Stamford and other cities when work at the Branford Lock Works or quarries slowed down.

The pages for the census are pre-printed in the upper right corner with columns and each row is numbered. There are 100 lines per page number divided into Part A and Part B with 50 lines each over two pages. The page number is stamped in the upper right corner of the page. The head of households and dwellings start with "1" on page 226. The Branford Borough, then a defined area in the center of town, starts on page 262 and the households again begin with "1".

The writing is fairly good, however, it is a bit difficult to distinguish between "a" and "o". Sometimes only initials were used for first names. Middle initials are very difficult to read since someone wrote over the entries during some data collecting. The population was 5706, a 53% increase since 1880.

This writer has transcribed the census and analyzed the genealogy of the people in Branford. In previous census I have presented a brief genealogy of every head of household. There are a number of large boarding houses in the center of town which house certain immigrant groups, mostly workers in the factories. Many of these workers would not have stayed in Branford but moved on to other locations as work became available or returned to Europe. The majority of these workers were from Poland. The population of the center of Branford had greatly increased with the arrival of new immigrants.

There are some interesting observations concerning immigrant groups. It is interesting to review the status of citizenship among immigrant groups. Swedish men tended to become naturalized rather quickly, those from Finland less so. The enumerator sometimes used nicknames instead of full first names for immigrants- i.e. Charley, Joe. Often the birth date of the male immigrant head of household was not recorded but that of the wife was. The pattern of men coming to this country and later sending for their family continues.

This is the first federal census that a Branford Town Directory is available. By using the directory and other records, the exact address where the families lived can be determined and the route the enumerator took.

An entry in brackets has been added by this writer for clarification of the record. The following is the route taken by the enumerator.
