

ITEMS OF SOCIAL INTEREST

This week has witnessed the departure of many of the smart set for their summer homes at the shore and the mountains. In every college town commencement marks the close of the social season and New Haven is no exception to the rule. All of this week the professors and their families have been leaving town to remain until the opening of college in the fall. And not only members of the university set, but scores of others have left town for the summer. One sees so many closed houses that the town seems to have gone to sleep. For those who are remaining in town for the summer, or are to be away simply for the month of August, the Country club is the chief attraction. There has been comparatively little golf played the past week, owing partly to the warm weather and partly to the absence of many of the players. Those who have been at the club have spent the time in social chat and in informal luncheons and dinners. The entertaining has been almost entirely informal during the week and has consisted largely of family parties.
